THE STORY OF THE CLARK FAMILY

JOSIAH CLARK, the patriarch of the present Clark clan and the father of ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK, who braved the unknown and journeyed to the Territory of Michigan in 1830 to seek his fortune, was born in the Colonies July 25, 1748, thirty-six years before the Declaration of Independence was signed. His antecedents are uncertain thus far. However, he traces back directly to two brothers, JOHN and JOSIAH CLARK, who about the middle of the 17th century left Bedfordshire, in the southeast portion of England, crossed the Atlantic Ocean and settled in Connecticut. One of these brothers became Secretary of Governor Roger Williams, the founder of the State of Rhode Island.

JOSIAH CLARK had three wives and eleven children in all, but we are concerned only with his second wife, ELIZABETH BAILEY, born in 1756, died February 3, 1803, who gave him three children: ELIJAH BAILEY, born Nov. 23, 1792, DUDLEY B., born April 8, 1795 and ELIZABETH, born August 13, 1798.

George Washington was President of the United States for the first time when ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK, was born, either in East Lynn, Conn. or Groton, Conn. Various sources list both places.

At an early age as was then the custom of the time, the brothers ELIJAH BAILEY, who was thirteen Years old and DUDLEY B. then ten, were bound out for a period of three years, ELIJAH B. as a carpenter's apprentice and DUDLEY as a shoemaker's apprentice. Becoming dissatisfied, the brothers ran way to Danascus, Wayne County, Penna., a lumbering town along the Delaware river in a mountainous district of northeast Pennsylvania.

ELIJAH BAILEY on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware river worked at the carpenter's trade and DUDLEY on the New York side at shoemaking. ELIJAH BAILEY served 10 days in the militia in the War of 1812. He was 20 years old at the time.

On March 6, 1816 at the age of 14 he married MARY ANN YERKES, born January 24, 1798 in Damascus, Pa., died January 3, 1864, Orion Township, Michigan. MARY ANN YERKES was the daughter of ELIZABETH JARRETT, born August 16, 1770 in the Colonies and descended from a Reverend John Watts of Leeds, Kent, England, and JONATHAN YERKES, born December 5, 1759 in the Colonies. JONATHAN YERKES fought in the American Revolution. His number 03602, is listed by the Register General of the Daughters of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

MARY ANN YERKES CLARK was one of ten brothers and sisters.

In 1830 together with ASA W. OWEN, SR., a close neighbor in Pennsylvania and afterwards in Michigan, ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK journeyed to Michigan Territory. There both young men purchased tracts of land in Orion Township.

Without a doubt, ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK was attracted to Michigan Territory at this time, like thousands of others, principally because it was easily accessible. The first steamboat the WALK-ON-THE-WATER had appeared at Detroit in 1818.

(Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, had tried out the first one on the Hudson River in 1807). The Erie Canal had been opened in 1825. In 1820 a daily steamship line began operating three boats between Detroit and Buffalo. Under the efficient administration of Governor Lewis Cass, from 1813 to 1831, many of the hostile Indians had been removed to west of the Mississippi. Printing presses had been established in Detroit, Ann Arbor, Monroe and Pontiac and these became largely instrumental in making the country better known.

Returning to Pennsylvania, ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK sold his Pennsylvania farm of 100 acres for $8 an acre and emigrated to Michigan Territory with his wife, MARY ANN YERGENS CLARK, and five children; Elisabeth, Loretta, the twins Catherine and Anastasia (Tacy Ann) and Romasino, the youngest, then five years of age.

They all started for Michigan in May 1831 and arrived in June, all possessions intact so far as we know. Their trip took them via the Erie Canal from Newbury, Penna., to Buffalo, N.Y., a journey of several days, and then by steamboat, the HENRY CLAY, to Detroit. It took three days for the steamboat to span Lake Erie. Except for the three steamboats which plied daily between Detroit and Buffalo and some Indian canoes, the surface of Lake Erie was devoid of any other form of transportation.

At that time, Detroit was a village two blocks in width, bounded on the North by Woodbridge Street, and on the south by the river. The site of the present city was one vast swamp. Royal Oak then consisted of a house, a barn and a drove of skycutter hogs. Not a soul lived in Orion village. Oxford was not in existence and Pontiac did not get on the map until two years later when in 1833 the U.S. government built the Detroit, Pontiac and Saginaw turnpike.

The trading points were Auburn, Rochester and Detroit. The sole center of interest and industry in the hamlet of Rochester was a distillery. The corn from this plant, used for hog-fattening purposes, was an extremely important source of meat supply.

ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK obtained a tract of 320 acres at a cost of $1.25 per acre. Later on his descendants expanded it to 700 acres. The deed for the original 320 acres was signed by Martin Van Buren, at that time Secretary of State under Andrew Jackson and later the Vice-President and the 8th President of the United States, from 1837-1841/.

The first CLARK residence, a log house located about 15 rods east of the present Clark school house, was erected in three weeks time. In 1834 or 1835 a school house, the second one in the township, was built. At that time there were five families in the township and about the same number of houses.

DUDLEY CLARK, brother of ELIJAH BAILEY, came in 1836 to Michigan Territory, settling three miles west of Oxford Village. His descendants, after having lived in widely separated parts of the country, are all deceased.

So great was the immigration into Michigan Territory during this period that during the winters of 1836 and 1837 thousands of the inhabitants of the Territory were on the verge of starvation.

In 1837, the year that Michigan was admitted into the Union, ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK was elected for a 2-year period as Township Supervisor and two years later, in 1847, he was elected a Representative to the State Legislature from Oakland County.

As we have stated, ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK and MARY ANN YERKES CLARK, had five children when they moved to Michigan Territory in 1831, and five more children were later born to them, making ten in all. They were:

Elizabeth, Loretta, Catherine and her twin sister Anastasia (Tacy Ann) Romaine, Josiah, Leonidas, William Chauncy, Sylvanus Smith and A. Judson.

TACY ANN (Anastasia) CLARK, married Charles C. Dowdby, Feb. 11, 1840, five children were born to them, they were:

Mary Melissa, Helen Ida, Frederia, Charles Frank and Georgia.

ORCILLA BOULEY married JOHN R. WHITSELL, January 1, 1866, three children were born to them, they are:

Frances, Georgia Ann and Charles.

These newspaper clippings are posted in the Bowlby Bible, now owned by Mrs B.B.Scott, 121 N. Genesee Ave., Pontiac, Mich.

At Orion, Oakland County, Mich., January 3rd, 1904, MARY ANN wife of ELIJAH B. CLARK, aged 65 years.

Her disease was one of a very malignant character, which baffled the skill of her physicians, and in a few short days, death had performed its office, and Mrs Clark's earthly labors were accomplished.

Though her disease was severe and her suffering great, she retained her reason until the last moment, and through the blessing of God, gained a complete victory over the last enemy. She died in hope of a joyful resurrection unto eternal life. In early life she sought and found the Saviour, and found him in her greatest extremity a very present help in trouble.

The deceased leaves an unsullied reputation among her neighbors and acquaintances. In the peculiar relations of wife and mother, she was all that could be desired, a helpmeet to her husband, a pattern of piety and industry to her children; tho' though they feel their loss and irreparable one, do not sorrow even as others who have no hope. Their loss they feel assured is her gain. It may not be amiss, therefore to suggest as a fit motto for the marble that may perpetuate her memory, DIED IN HOPE.

Still braving his life battle and maintaining determined strength and interest in things about his home, WILLIAM CLARK, Sr., of Orion has passed his nine-sixth natal day.

CLARK, during the past few weeks, has been directing work about his home and showing little temerity for his age or old-time methods.

He lives on a farm of 350 acres near Orion, originally taken up by his father from the government. With the exception of six years he always has made his home there.

YERKES FAMILY RECORD

The information of the YERKES FAMILY RECORD was obtained from a Memorandum from May Harrison Rockwell of Pontiac, Mich.,

The following information concerns the ancestors of MARY ANN YERKES CLARK (born January 24, 1708, died Jan. 3, 1864).

She was the wife of ELIJAH DAILEY CLARK, born November 23, 1792, died 1884.

ANTHONY YERKES, probably born in Holland, settled at Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., He was a juror in 1702, and a member of the House of Burgesses (governing body) from 1702-04. He purchased a large plantation on Pennypack or Penepac Creek in Manor of Moreland in 1703. He married Margaret-----.

His son HERMAN or HENRIANUS, born in Holland? 1689-1750 in 1711 (February 3) married ELIZABETH WATTS (1661-1708) who came from Leeds County, Kent, England in 1686. He was the first or second Baptist minister in America in Penepac Church (Township of Lower Dublin), later part of Philadelphia.

TITUS YERKES, son of Herman Yerkes and Elizabeth Watts Yerkes, was born in 1731 and in 1757 married Margaret Paul, born 1737. Titus Yerkes died in 1783, and Margaret Paul Yerkes died January 16, 1823.

JONATHAN YERKES, son of Titus Yerkes, was born December 5, 1730, married Elizabeth Jarrett r Carrett, born August 16, 1770. They were married November 15, 1789. Jonathan Yerkes fought in the American Revolution, and is listed #63002 in the Register General of the Daughters of the National Society of the American Revolution.

JONATHAN YERKES and ELIZABETH JARRETT YERKES had ten children one of whom was MARY ANN YERKES, born January 24, 1788, died January 5, 1864. She married ELIJAH BAILEY CLARK, born November 23, 1792 at East Lynn, Conn., on March 6, 1816.

The ancestors of Elizabeth Watts were:

The Reverend John Watts (1661-1702) who married Sarah Eaton (1635-1723), daughter of John Eaton of Radnorshire, Wales, England.

The father of John Watts was Henry Watts (1616-17-1679), who married Elizabeth Duck.

Henry Watts was the son of Gregory Watts, died 1654) of Leeds County, Kent, England, who married Margaret-----.
